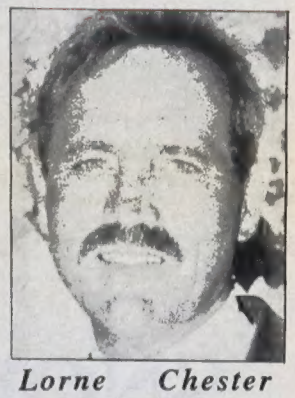
Nationalistic charge falls flat for Tory candidate

by Russ Duhaime

Seperatists in parliament will be starved of cash if Lorne Chester has anything to say about it.

The Tory candidate lashed out at the Bloc Quebecois Friday, saying those who are elected should be stripped of all their benefits. In fact, Chester says this will be among his top priorities if voters in Victoria-Haliburton give him the nod.

"I'll be damned if you and I will allow these seperatists to bring about the disintegration of the country that you and I love," Chester told an overflow crowd at Hyland Crest on Friday. "They're not Canadian if they're proposing the break-up of Canada,"



Lorne Chester targets BQ in desperate bid to recharge campaign.

Chester's impassioned statement was a surprising departure from the previous tactics that had him echoing Kim Campbell on virtually all issues. The bold statement, however, failed to ignite the nationalistic fuel in the audience. Instead of cheers, he was met with muffled guffaws from the crowd of more than 300.

Charles Olito, however, brought cheers from the floor with his rebuttal. "This is Conservative hypocracy," the Canada Party candidate bellowed. He said former Prime Minister Brian Mulroney actively recruited seperatists to win Quebec seats in the last federal election. Instead of throwing out the Bloc Quebecois, Olito said he'd throw out the Conservatives. The crowd roared with approval.

Friday's meeting was the third in a series of candidates forums leading up to the October 25 federal election. Seven of the nine candidates were on stage fielding questions for almost two hours.

And although it was the Conservative candidate who strayed furthest from the beaten path, the show belonged to Barry Devolin (Ref) and Dennis Drainville (Ind). Apart from his nationalistic plea at the outset of the forum, Chester spent much of the evening ducking criticisms of the past nine years of Tory rule. Clearly flustered by the barrage, he twice distanced himself from his party's past by noting he was not in office during Brian Mulroney's days as Prime Minister. In his closing remarks, he pointed out that the Conservatives have a "new leader and a new style", which again brought laughter from the floor.

Devolin was under fire from all sides as his opponents attempted to discredit his party. Devolin, however, held his composure in light of all the attention. Rather than retaliating, he presented his platform and

Increasing enrolment spells potential disaster

by Andy Holloway

Enrolment at Haliburton County schools is rising much faster than school board officials had predicted.

At the high school, enrolment is up to 689 full time students from 626 last year. The board had predicted that just 650 students would be in the school. The prediction for 1998 of 780 students would appear to be out as well if enrolment keeps climbing as it has in the past few years.

Enrolment at the elementary schools increased only by 30 students over last year with most of the growth occurring at Dorset and Wilberforce.

The unexpected increase in enrolment at the high school is starting to create problems, said Education Director Brad Saunders. The first is that the high school was designed to accommodate just 625 students and is now over that level. "Haliburton Highlands Secondary School is now at the bursting point," said Saunders.

Saunders said he met with high school staff last Monday to discuss solving the needs of having an extra 200-300 students in the school.

But a long-term solution for the space crisis will have to come from the management committee's capital expenditure forecast which must be submitted by November 1. An accurate forecast is needed by the board in order to obtain the necessary grants for any proposed project. Eliminating the overcrowding at the high school by building an addition or new school would be considered a capital project. The ministry, however, does not assure funding for such projects, only that all will be considered.

The ministry is also asking that boards identify their new capital needs relating to junior kindergarten. Haliburton's school board has a grant to build two JK classrooms in Haliburton Village at either Victoria Street or J.D. Hodgson schools.

The only school to have its attendance drop significantly was Cardiff which fell from 124 students last year to 105.

John Munro (Sherborne) said the decision to use the board's smaller outlying schools now seems to be paying off. Schools like Dorset and Wilberforce have had dramatic enrolment increases which kept pressure off the two major elementary schools and reduced costs in both bussing and paying tuition to neighboring boards like Muskoka.

Business administrator Jim Bradley said when he first started working at the board many years ago, there were plenty of empty classrooms in the system. Today, there is just one.

ARTHRITIS RELIEF
IN YOUR OWN HOME
Softub®

Only $2395.00 For Everything That You Need!
THE SPA OF INFINITE POSSIBILITIES
Many leading authorities in the medical and physical therapy fields have recommended warm water treatment for hydrotherapy, exercise, and arthritis relief.
Today millions of people are experiencing the relaxation and therapeutic benefits of hydrotherapy.
Imagine having your own "hydrotherapy centre" in your home or on your patio, ready to use whenever you want, night or day. It would always be warm, always bubbling, always ready to soothe aching muscles and sore joints.
And what if this "hydrotherapy centre" was easy to own, easy to care for, and affordable...would it be too good to be true? No, it would be a Softub.

Village fears loss of doctors' quarters

by Jerry Grozelle

A delegation of two people representing the Kinmount Legion expressed their concern to Somerville Council that Kinmount may lose its medical centre.

Murray King and Ambrose Ferren asked Council for its help in keeping medical facilities in Kinmount. They are afraid that when the lease on the current building is up on November 1, there may be no place for the doctors to practice.

"If the lease isn't renewed there won't be any doctors because there won't be an office for them," Ferren said.

One of the reasons the Legion representatives are so concerned about the medical centre is because of a proposal that has been submitted to the government requesting assistance to build a seniors and low rent housing complex in the village. If there were no medical facilities in Kinmount, they feel the chances of having the proposal accepted would be in jeopardy.

Council was asked if the basement of the Somerville Municipal Office would be available as a last resort in the event that a suitable alternative facility hasn't been found by the end of this month.

Council was non-committal about the Township Office but did agree to work with a committee, which Reeve John Huke suggested be set up to study the options. Huke promised to look into the possibility of using the old Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce building on Kinmount's main street.

King, a member of the Legion executive, suggested that local churches, service clubs and neighbouring municipalities be approached to see if they would support the idea of a non-profit medical centre similar to the medical centre in Coboconk.

Huke, for one, wasn't optimistic about such a proposal.

"The medical centre in Coboconk has become a real burden to Bexley Township," he said.

Kinmount's medical centre now has two doctors (Dr. Anthony Holliday-Rhodes and Dr. Ben Wu) who are there at least on a part time basis .

Dr. Holliday-Rhodes also has an office in Minden and operates the Kinmount medical centre as a satellite office. His wife Sonya explained that she is in the process of negotiating with the owner of another building in Kinmount. The potential new office is a 600 square-foot structure on Kinmount's main street. She said that the building is not the old CIBC building because it is not suitable for the purpose of a medical centre.

Holliday-Rhodes admitted that if she is successful in obtaining the office on the main street, there will be some work to be done, such as putting in partitions and other renovations.

"I was thinking of going to council and asking them if they could give us any assistance in setting it up, that's all," she said.

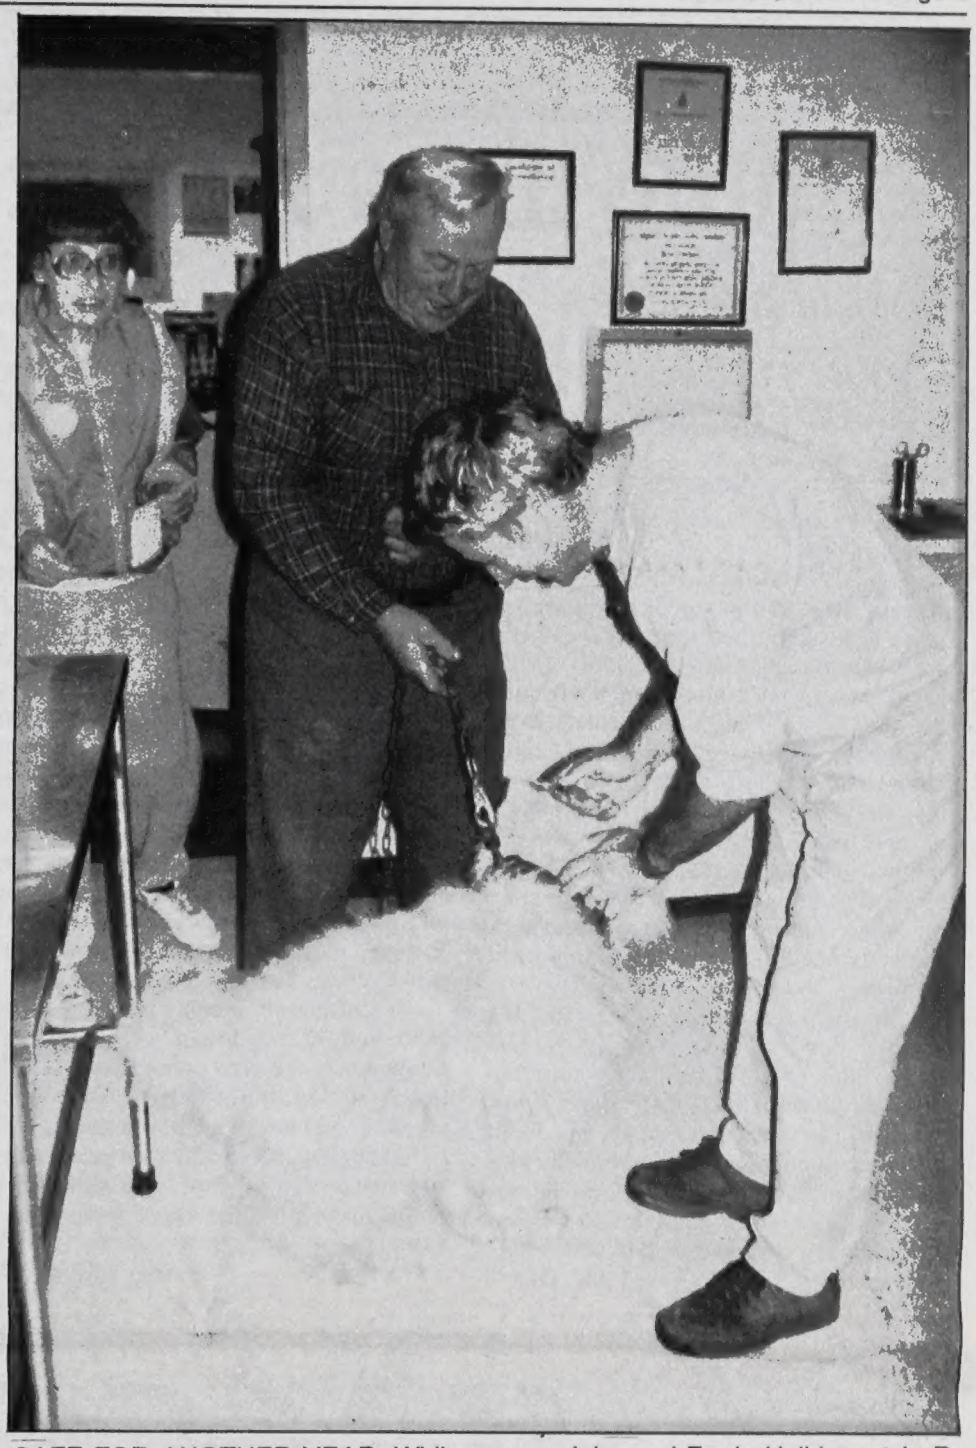
One of the main reasons for moving from the present facility, according to Holliday-Rhodes, is the high cost of electricity.

"The hydro bills are terrible," she said. "They're really bad. And the location isn't the best.

"I think we're better off on the main street," she added. "Especially when the fair is on because none of those people know we're up there on the back street."

At present, it appears as though fears that the medical centre may be lost to Kinmount are unfounded.

"We will move if we can get that place," Holliday-Rhodes stated."We're not closing."



SAFE FOR ANOTHER YEAR: While owners John and Freda Hulbig watch, Dr. Peter Bennett administers a rabies shot to "Trinka". The second day of the anti-rabies campaign was held this past weekend at the MInden Animal Clinic. It was sponsored by the district health unit in hopes of stemming the spread of rabies among family pets and the potential for the disease to be transmitted to humans. Over 500 cats and dogs received the protection offered by the vaccine.

Getting the word out

Locating election signs is serious business

by Andy Holloway

Signs, signs, everywhere you look there's a sign.

One of the more obvious ways to tell there's an election upcoming is when party signs pop up all over the beautiful Haliburton landscape.

Whether they actually persuade people to vote for a certain candidate is up for debate, but that doesn't stop candidates from placing signs in just about every nook and cranny.

But believe it or not, there is a method behind the madness of locating signs. Signs are not randomly placed just anywhere. Sites have to be scouted, people canvassed and volunteers organized before a sign becomes a reality.

First off the block, at least in this county, was the Reform Party who had signs up almost immediately once an election was called. Candidate Barry Devolin says his party made up about 1150 signs and almost every one of them is gone. In fact, demand for the signs is still high. "Our original intention was not to order any more, but people are still calling up and asking for them," says Devolin.

Campaign manager Bob Stinson says the majority of the signs are placed on private property. A lot of time was spent finding good locations for the signs to be put up - of course, the property owners would also have to be party supporters.

On public property, sign placement can almost be seen as anarchy. See one sign at the corner of two intersecting highways and there will probably be more. Every party wants these key high traffic locations, but it's unusual for just one party to be able to claim them as their own. While the Reform Party tried to cover the riding, Stinson says they "weren't worried about where the signs went up because ours were up first."

Another party that was quick off the block was the Liberal Party and local candidate John O'Reilly. The party has printed 1,100 signs so far, says public relations coordinator Michael Cayley, but they may print up more as the campaign swings into the closing weeks.

The Liberals seem to have sign placement down to an exact science. Cayley says the sign committee has different strategies for different types of signs. The committee first networked as the Reform Party did to find good spots and voters willing to have a sign. Each of the small lawn signs represents a Lib-

Campaign workers from reformer Barry Devolin's camp set up a sign in the riding. A lot of preparation and thought goes into locating the signs say campaign workers.

Federal Election '93

Each week The Times will ask each of the major candidates to respond to a question. This week's question is: Haliburton has one of the highest unemployment rates in the country. Where do you feel the potential for recovery lies in this county?

John O'Reilly, Liberal

The Haliburton Highlands contain some of the most scenic countryside in all of Canada. Over the last 30 years, the tourism potential has been identified and is being developed. This is an area that has significant growth potential and will require aggressive support of the local, provincial and federal governments.

Because of rising costs in the big cities, Haliburton and Minden have the potential to develop as retirement communities. By supporting health and social structures needed by retirement communities we can encourage seniors to retire in the county.

Lastly, by supporting small businesses with banking assistance, access to research and development and removal of red tape, we can see significant growth and employment opportunities in the county.

Martin Doyle, National Party

The recovery lies in Haliburton's tourism and all the attending spin-off industries and small businesses. In the first quarter of 1993, Canadians visiting the United States spent almost $3 billion, while Americans visiting Canada spent only $575 million. Nearly $2.5 billion balance of payment deficit in tourism is a sin.

The inns, country fairs, pristine lakes and rivers, outdoor activities, country restaurants, theatrical performances, festivals and artists' and craftpersons' studio tours make Haliburton perhaps the most sophisticated and scenic travel experience in Canada. I see the need for a strong federal education, advertising and promotion campaign to "Experience Canada" with a complimentary local campaign. In addition, there should be a three year "sin tax" on foreign leisure travel. A little Canadian nationalism would go a long way to getting Canada back on track.

Barry Devolin, Reform Party

Haliburton County's potential for recovery lies in an overall improvement in the central Ontario economy. Special government programs to stimulate the economy are not the answer. Both tourism and cottaging flourish in good times and suffer during a recession.

The Reform Party believes that the best thing government can do for business is to clean up its own act. If government could get its own affairs in order and cut spending, genuine tax relief could be passed along to business. I urge voters to carefully consider candidates or parties who offer "quick fix" or "too good to be true" promises of direct action. I believe that after 25 years of throwing money around we realize that short-term solutions only create short-term jobs. We need long-term solutions (i.e. lower taxes through less government) to truly create real, long-term jobs.

Cathy Vainio, NDP

To my understanding the county has some resource-based industry and agriculture. It is home to the Haliburton School of Fine Arts. It has the potential to expand its tourism base and given its attraction as a retirement community, Haliburton has great potential in that regard. If Elliot Lake has become a mecca for seniors I think the combination of tourism and recreational potential with retirement community projects as well as furthering Haliburton as a county which welcomes the artistic community bodes well for Haliburton's future. Unfortunately, past governments have seemed to favour certain communities and regions over others. Regional and community development projects have been set up through the squeaky wheel approach for vote-getting and patronage reasons. That is patently undemocratic. We have to change so public funds can be allocated in a fair manner, not on the basis of patronage.

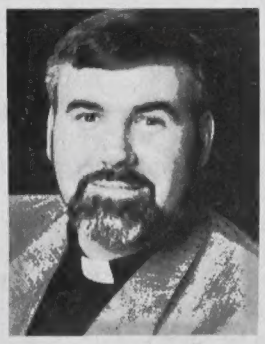
Lorne Chester, Conservative

I think there are three areas where work can be done to improve the unemployment situation in Haliburton.

Tourism is a vital industry in this community. An active MP with strong party backing can draw enormous attention to the area and promote tourism to the region. I intend to be that kind of MP.

Agriculture is another good source of jobs for residents in this area. Part of the reason for my support of NAFTA is the fact that the farming community, not only wants it, but needs it if we are to build strong agricultural markets. I can get them the kind of support in Ottawa they need to prosper and grow. Small businesses will provide the largest number of new jobs in the time ahead. I support legislation which will cut red tape for businesses. I also support the Small Business Loans Act which helps get capital into the hands of entrepreneurs. This kind of initiative is what I will be aggressively pursuing in Ottawa.

Dennis Drainville, Independent



In Haliburton County, as in other counties in this immense riding of Victoria-Haliburton, genuine recovery must grow from small business, including agriculture. But there must be strategic government spending to help small business burst out of the recessionary chains in which it has been trapped. This does not mean new tax dollars, but rather a reallocation of money.

It's always a matter of priorities. We can pour billions into helicopters and a Gulf War, or we can invest thousands in the entrepreneurial spirit of our people. We have had a federal government for years which has supported helicopters, war, free trade and GST. I would rather put my faith, and the Victoria-Haliburton parliamentary vote, on the people of this riding.

Election notes

Candidate meeting

Not content to show voters his stuff at all-candidates meetings, Reformer Barry Devolin is now holding a series of candidate meetings. "With their being so many of us it's difficult to cover all the issues you feel are important," said Devolin.

The meetings have been scheduled for Haliburton this Thursday in the hall above the arena and for Minden this Friday at the community centre. Both meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. and after a presentation the public will be able to ask Devolin whatever questions they may have.

The party reports that a similar meeting held in Bobcaygeon last week was a success and a number of questions were put forth.

GST talk

Ticked off about the GST? Liberal finance critic Herb Gray wants to hear what you have to say. Gray will be in Omemee this Thursday from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. to lead an open discussion on the impact, faults and alternatives to the GST. Anyone can attend the event which is being held by the local Liberals.

Nine in running

The number of candidates officially grew to nine last week. The two new candidates are David Heatherington of the Natural Law Party of Canada and Highland Grove's Donald Waterhouse of the Christian Heritage Party. The Natural Law Party is the fourth largest party in Canada if you consider how many candidates it is fielding are. Charles Olito of The Canada Party entered the race earlier in September.

Seniors gear up

A group representing seniors across Canada is trying to get seniors involved in the federal election by telling them to get out and vote. The group, called One Voice, has produced a seniors election handbook and is circulating it. The booklet contains a number of issues and facts concerning those programs which concern seniors. The closest contact person to the Haliburton area is Helen Heeney in Orillia. If any senior wants a booklet Heeney can be reached at 705-327-9079.

Making an informed decision

All six major candidates have plenty of material for you at their fingertips

by Andy Holloway

There is a tendency among parties to believe that voters do not make intelligent, informed decisions about voting. Prime Minister Kim Campbell admitted as much when she said elections are not the time to talk about important issues.

Leaders assume voters sway on emotional attachment to a party, leader or local candidate. The love Victoria-Haliburton had for Bill Scott would be an example of such blind devotion.

However, Scott is not running for the first time in 27 years and voters are being forced to consider all of the alternatives.

This decision-making process is what the local Liberals are hoping will swing voters their way. Campaigner Michael Cayley says he hopes voters will take the time to look at the Liberal proposals presented by John O'Reilly before deciding.

To that end, the Liberals have plenty of literature for people to read. Everything from a short biography of O'Reilly to the Liberal master plan "Creating Opportunities."

Cayley says the Liberals are talking about the issues. Even the radio ads the local Liberals will be running this week remind voters of that.

By calling 878-0577 voters can get the following from the Liberal headquarters: the full text of Creating Opportunities, a fact sheet on Creating Opportunities, O'Reilly's promotional pamphlet, the O'Reilly Report (a tabloid newsletter), biographical information as well as other information.

Over at the Conservative camp the pickings are nearly as high even though there seems to be a general public concensus that the PCs do not have a platform such as the Liberals have. After receiving mounting criticism, Kim Campbell unveiled a hastily assembled booklet called "A Taxpayers' Agenda" which should soon be available at the local campaign office (878-9799).

> There's the Red Manifesto, a job plan, a Green Book and even the Tories are in the act

The PCs also have a pamphelt, "Questions and Answers", which details many of the party's policies and theories. This is backed up by a set of policy papers produced in Ottawa that can be photocopied and picked up.

The NDP has less literature than the two major parties. It does, however, have a 12 page job strategy booklet which can be obtained by calling 1-800-361-6637. The local campaign office (878-0023) also has the usual biography/pamphelt showing Cathy Vainio's agenda. There is an information leaflet being made which will be released later.

Barry Devolin's camp is another with plenty of information available in addition to the usual promotional flyers. If you want all of the party's policies ask the office (878-1785) for "The Blue Sheet" which is updated after the party's national assembly is held each year.

The party also has "Zero in Three", "So you don't trust politicans? Neither do we", and "Agriculture: Real Solution", which are tabloid-sized flyers illustrating specific party policies. If none of the above satisfies the question you have, office workers can resort to "The Green Book" which has every one of the party's policies in detail. "If someone calls up with a specific question about an issue, say the senate, then we can pull out the book and photocopy it and send it out," says campaign manager Bob Stinson.

Munroe Scott, one of the people behind Dennis Drainville's independent bid, says their office (878-4046) gives out a lot of verbal information since Drainville does not have a party platform behind him. However, they do publish a weekly newsletter which they try to get out to as many people as possible. They can not mail the letters because of the cost, but they do get wide access according to Scott. "There's no way we're blanketing the riding, but we're printing up thousands of them."

Besides being a promo package for Drainville, the newsletter also has non-partisan election information which is useful.

Finally, the National Party has several pieces

Placing signs requires strategy

eral voter says Cayley. No one is paid to put a sign up on their lawn and the signs are posted entirely by volunteers.

The riding was split into 18 subsections, each of which was concentrated on equally. An example of an area would be Minden and the surrounding highways and roads. Cayley says 15 per cent of all the signs are the larger ones and they have been geographically divided among the 18 areas.

"It's not really part of the strategy to put the signs together," says Cayley, "It's because the locations are high traffic areas."

One of the problems with signs is that they cost money, time and effort, so smaller parties with correspondingly smaller budgets, do not have as many signs. The NDP, for example, is putting up 500 signs. The party was a little slow out of the starting blocks and only began putting them up late last week. "We'd like to see them on people's lawns because that shows people the support you have," says campaign co-manager Art Field. "And in high traffic areas."

A much poorer party like the National Party will not even have signs until the last week of the campaign. Local association president Gloria Welsh says the local candidate Martin Doyle will have at least 100 signs and maybe 200 if all goes well with the level of cash donations.

"It's my feeling that one doesn't have to flood the area with the signs as soon as the election writ is announced," says Welsh which is another reason for waiting for the final week.

Between then and now, however, the party is relying on the all-candidates meeting to make people aware they exist and on word of mouth.

Munroe Scott working for the Dennis Drainville campaign says there is a theory that some people just vote the first name that pops into their head which makes signs important in that regard.

However, he adds that he is not as "cynical" as those theorists. Nonetheless little green Drainville signs are popping up all over the riding.

Anyway you cut it, signs are a big deal.

Get involved with chamber

The scant turnout at Wednesday's annual meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce speaks volumes about the association.

About 35 people attended the meeting at Deer Lodge to hear committee reports and elect six new members to the board. Since only six people were seeking election, the board was filled by acclamation.

Some might suggest this showing reflects a lack of interest in the chamber. We, however, believe it's more a reflection of the level of satisfaction in the chamber's work.

Business owners must be happy with the efforts of their chamber. Otherwise, there would have been hundreds of people out to the meeting and more than a dozen members seeking election to the board. The scarcity of candidates to fill the vacancies on the board is a sign of the times — business owners are loath to enter into volunteer commitments that would take away from their businesses.

Still, the poor showing is cause for concern. While the chamber is struggling with tight finances, the importance of volunteer works is vital to its success in effectively marketing the area. The chamber is forced to function without a manager, and board members are volunteering their time to carry out these duties. Their time spent at the chamber office and at trade shows is time away from their own businesses.

In order to compete effectively with all the regions looking to tourism for economic fortunes, the board will need all the help it can get. Members are welcome to share their ideas with the board or to serve on any of the committees.

There's also the question of membership that needs addressing. While the chamber relies on county council for a big chunk of its funding, less than half the businesses in the highlands are paid-up members. Council would surely look favourably on continued support if the majority of direct beneficiaries showed more enthusiasm.

With competition for tourism dollars on the rise, the chamber's role is more important than ever. And, with limited funds to promote the area, active participation from members is vital.

A FORCE TO BE RECKONED WITH?

Running in the red, Liberal style

Editor:

At a recent all-candidates meeting in Haliburton, Liberal John O'Reilly was quoted as saying, "They spend a lot of time fighting the deficit which is in my mind just money we owe ourselves."

I take it the debt would be more of a problem if the money was owed to someone other than ourselves. Never mind that a large portion of the debt is in securities owned outside the country. This leaves little regard for the lenders, some of whom were probably in the audience. Remember those Canada Savings Bonds that come on sale soon? Many people put their life savings or children's future into these, only to be told "just money we owe ourselves."

So, let's borrow more from ourselves to pay ourselves the interest owed to ourselves It's logic like that which has gotten us into this mess.

P.S. Don't lend money to O'Reilly. He'll just return to you to borrow more so he can pay you the interest he owes.

PC Perrin Beatty still afraid of the Red menace

Editor:

I hear Canada's Secretary of State Perrin Beatty visited the Chester headquarters in Lindsay on September 24.

Does Lorne Chester know the background of Perrin Beatty, the valued member of the Kim Campbell team?

Does he know that he was the genius who advocated Canada's purchase of nuclear submarines at a cost of billions of dollars?

All this to counter a supposed Soviet threat to Canada's sovereignty under Arctic ice. God help us.

Hunters are responsible but so are non-hunters

The following is addressed to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Dear OFAH,

Thank you for considering me for potential membership, however, I feel I must decline.

I wanted to write because your material painted those who are concerned about the rights of animals as "Fanatics... ranting and raving... " This is just as bad, and, just as false, as branding all hunters as "rednecks."

Concern for the environment and the sustaining of healthy animal populations has to be a goal for all citizens — hunter and non-hunter alike. There is room for both viewpoints and associated activities. Without a healthy environment, we would soon find we had lost, not only the beauty and those special places we all visit and enjoy, but also our sources of food, fuel, jobs, and our very lives. We have done, and are, continuing to do terrible damage to the environment right here in Ontario.

A comment on one topic not covered in your brochure: I would hope that you will continue to spend energy on educating your members. A good hunter respects wildlife and practises "good sportsmanship." I have friends who witnessed "sportsmen" run deer through large Hydro rights-of-way while they sit on hilltops shooting deer like fish in a barrel. I have recently had neighbours practising target shooting on a Sunday and, when politely approached, they didn't care about the rights of others. If your members want to keep hunting privileges (or rights) intact, they should be motivated to act when they see infractions, to object when they hear a story of poor hunting practises, and to report to the authorities illegal activities. If they don't, then those rights and privileges will be reduced further — not as a punishment — but as a reaction to declining populations, and increasing cases of property damage and personal hunting/firearm injuries.

To conclude, most hunters and non-hunters are just responsible people. But both groups have an undesirable fringe which is threatening to spoil it for the rest of us. The equating of this "fringe few" to the whole, can only be unproductive for both sides. The majority of both sides have the same goal — a flourishing countryside with healthy ecosystems. There is room for both activities.

Oh, and why am I not joining?? I'm a member of Greenpeace.

Falling fast

Finally, an artist for the people

Black 'n White
by Arthur Black

I don't know about your situation, but my take-home pay is definitely not keeping up with the times.

We live, after all, in an age when an amiable young thug by the name of Wendel Clark makes a million bucks a year as captain of a gang of shinny players called the Maple Leafs.

That's more than I make.

We live in an age when a pigskin-toter by the name of Rocket (The Dud) Ishmail scammed approximately 10 million bucks from his employers in return for not playing all that well for less than three seasons.

That's a lot more than I make.

We live in age when a journeyman ham like Bruce Willis can command - and get - 12 million dollars to star in a movie. And this is after a string of cinematic duds from which the faithful movie-going public stayed away in droves.

That too, is a lot more than I make.

We live in an age when Michael Jackson - a squeaky-voiced androgynous wuss who likes to dress up in bellhops uniforms and have his hair ironed and his skin bleached - gets $65 million from Sony Corporation to make a tour of Japan.

That's more than the GNP of several Third World countries.

I'm not complaining, mind you. I make enough to keep shingles over my head and shoe leather between my bunions and the sidewalk.

As a matter of fact, I probably make just about all the dough I can comfortably handle. It may be a failure of imagination on my part, but I'm not sure how good I'd be if somebody suddenly dumped $65 million or $12 million or even a measly million bucks in my lap.

Such numbers are nuts! Nobody needs that much money. What's Bruce Willis going to do with another $12 million - get a face lift for his smirk?

And Michael Jackson needs another $65 million? For what - to buy more Ferris Wheels and Merry Go Rounds for his 2700 acre kiddies ranch in California?

We've got our money priorities way out of whack - and not just the greedheads at the top of the pyramid either. Let's face it; the money I make may be chump change to Michael Jackson or Bruce Wills or Wendel Clark, but I'd qualify for aristocracy in Bosnia, Ethiopia or Haiti.

And then there's Theodore Major. Chances are extremely good that you've never heard of Theodore. He's a wizened little gnome of a man, 85-years-old, who lives in a shabby brownstone house in Wigan, England. Theodore Major's health is failing, and that's too bad because last month he found himself in trouble with the law.

The problem is the house right next to Theodore's. Theodore bought it 16 years ago, and uses it to display his paintings free of charge to anyone who cares to come in and look at them.

Theodore is a painter, you see. As a matter of fact, according to John Berger - a respected art critic - Theodore is "among the best English painters of our time."

He's also a bit of a curmudgeon. When the local town council ordered Theodore to pay a poll tax of nearly $4,000 on the house of paintings, Theodore told the town council to go jump in the canal. The town council then sued to have Theodore committed to prison.

At the trial, it was revealed that Theodore was living on a state pension of $150 a week.

But, the magistrate rumbled, surely as one of the country's best painters, Mister Major had merely to sell off one or two of his canvasses, pay the fine and retire on the profits.

Theodore drew himself up and replied, "Not to the people who want them, the rich people. I painted these pictures for ordinary people to see, and they do come. I never paint for money - I never have. I am an artist and I paint for the people."

The magistrate was so impressed that he ordered the charges dropped and came down from the bench to shake Theodore's hand and wish him good health.

Amen, Milord. An artist who performs for the people. What a concept.

Federal Election '93

Fax is stranger than fiction

From the fax

Sometimes things just don't need interpretation. Take, for example, this press release from Lorne Chester:

LINDSAY - Lorne Chester, the Progressive Conservative candidate for Victoria Haliburton, got carried away at the Lindsay Fair last Friday night.

He was so impressed by a pig that took a first prize at the exhibition he bought it.

The pig, owned by 10-year-old Eric Weaver, son of Paul Weaver of Woodville, weighed in at 220 pounds. Mr. Chester paid $1.40 per pound for it.

The candidate had no comment about what he intended to do with the pig, but he did lick his lips when asked about its future.

And the polls say...

But that's enough picking on the Tories for this week as the whole side seems to be slipping away. According to several new polls released last week the Conservatives should worry more about the Reform Party than the Liberals. In one poll the Reformers are now a solid third just 7 per cent behind the Tories while the Liberals are 14 per cent in front. If trends continue the Tories won't even be the official opposition, let alone winners.

The Harpoon

Election Notes

Oopsie

It's easy to poke fun at some one else, but now it's time for us to take it on the chin. The Times received numerous calls about when the all-candidates meeting in Minden actually was. The meeting was indeed, on Friday (as stated in the September 20 issue), not Wednesday as was stated in the September 27 issue. Nobody's perfect - we blew it.

Questions:

If the Conservatives had lovable Bill Scott running for the umpteenth time, would there be any need for an election in this riding? Most people, including members of other parties, say probably not. Sad, but true.

If Scott is still so popular, why does the Conservative candidate keep reminding us he's not Bill Scott? Whenever the people challenged the Tory record at Friday's candidates meeting, Lorne Chester defended himself by saying he is not the incumbent . . . he was not the member when those decisions were made.

Independent Dennis Drainville may not have an earthly leader, but isn't he responsible to his God? And would that affect his vote? How does God feel about the deficit?

What do they really mean?

We've all noticed the tendency of politicians to double-speak the truth when it suits their purposes. This election campaign is no exception, so without further ado here are some interpretations:

Kim Campbell said elections are not the time to discuss important issues. What she meant was that the Canadian public is not smart enough to comprehend any kind of intelligent plan even if the Tories had one - which they don't - but if they did . . .

Jean Chretien said the GST will be replaced if the Liberals are elected. What he meant was the Liberals would simply change the name of the tax, but that the revenues provided by taxes are too high to give up.

The NDP will concentrate on 65 ridings it has a chance of winning. What the party meant was that its popularity is dropping like a rock and there's nothing they can do about it.

Fax wars Part IV

For the fourth straight week the Liberals won the fax wars - these boys and girls love their paper. Headquarters sent out 24 sheets of faxes to us here at The Times while the best any other party could do was six, by both the Conservatives and the NDP. The NDP did cheat a little seeing as how the first four were all variations of the same page.

Family Affair

Friday was family night for three of the candidates: Martin Doyle was in Minden because of his daughters while Lorne Chester and John O'Reilly were rushing away because of their's.

Doyle said he is in the campaign because his daughters have lost hope of ever finding jobs if they finish school.

Chester and O'Reilly were anxious to get away from the candidates' forum so he could catch a part of their children's high school graduation in Lindsay.

Free Speech

Dennis Drainville's assertion that he won't be muzzled has become a very popular theme with all the candidates. All seven at Friday's meeting went to great pains to ensure the audience they will speak their minds. As if to prove his point, Lorne Chester stepped out from behind Kim Campbell's robe and announced his plans to put a financial gag on any Bloc Quebecois members who might get elected.

Into the Bedrooms

National Party Candidate Charles Olito hit below the belt when it came to his stand on official bilingualism. Brandishing an elections poster, he noted the English portion used eight inches while the French version took 10. "Is that a phallic symbol," he asked. Meanwhile, many in the audience tried to figure out what just language the candidate was speaking.

Fast Talker

How many words can you cram into a one-minute commercial? The strict time allowance for candidates's responses proved to be a problem in the early going for Martin Doyle. After he was cut short twice by the moderator, however, the candidate showed us why advertisers want him to do the voices for their commercials. Doyle amazed the audience by rhyming off two full pages of text within a single minute without once stopping to draw a breath.

Demolition Derby

Can a demolition derby be considered a sport? No matter, the Kinsmen present their annual bash fest this Saturday at the Fairgrounds in Minden.

Weldon Wildcats declawed by Big Red

by Andy Holloway

The I.E. Weldon Wildcats scored the first point against the Haliburton Redmen this season, and then Andy Bacon and Jay Hughes took over.

Bacon scored six touchdowns while Hughes passed for two more and the Redmen rolled up an amazing 54 points last Friday at the high school. That total is not a misprint. The Redmen beat the Wildcats 54-1 in the second incredibly lopsided game the Redmen have played this year. Last week the senior squad demolished the Fenelon Falls Falcons 41-0.

Weldon was the first to score in the game - the Redmen conceded a single after a Wildcat punt ended up in the end zone. The Redmen then took the ball, marched downfield and Bacon scored the first of his six touchdowns on the day running in from 12 yards out on what appeared to be a broken play. Surprisingly, given the score, that was the only scoring in the first quarter.

The second quarter, however, was much different. After the Redmen recovered a fumble, Bacon took the ball 35 yards for his second touchdown. The Wildcats were still in the game at this point and had the Redmen back at their own 25 yard line. From there, Hughes and Peter Van Leeuwen combined for a long pass-and-run touchdown that tamed the spirit of the Wildcats. Bacon added another touchdown with under a minute to play in the half and the Redmen were up 28-1.

The second half was more of the same.

BACON WITH PIG SKIN: Andy Bacon, number 56, scans the down field opposition as he starts another run for the end zone. Bacon found the goal line six times, as he led the Redmen to a lopsided 54-1 win over I.E. Weldon of Lindsay.

Soccer Redmen clean up in Lindsay

by Andy Holloway

The Haliburton Redmen senior soccer team just pounded their Lindsay opposition for the second week in a row scoring 17 goals in a two game mini-tournament last Wednesday.

In their first game the Redmen scored 13 goals against the I.E. Weldon Wildcats and gave up none for the most lopsided victory this year in the Kawartha West. Coach Walter Tose called it the best game he has ever seen the seniors play since he's been the coach. The key, said Tose, was ball control and judging by the score, the Wildcats were not in possession of the ball too many times.

Leading the scoring onslaught was Darren Parsons who totaled four goals. Others to score multiple goals were Jamie Thivierge and Lutz Haedicke - each with two - while Nico Haedicke, Tai Gerrard, Ritchie Mills, Jonathan Bishop and Jim O'Neill each has singles.

"Lutz was the spark plug," said Tose. "He hustled all game long and he almost did too much."

Another player Tose singled out was Jim O'Neill who is playing his first year of soccer. O'Neill's goal was scored on a penalty kick, which has to boost his confidence level said Tose.

In the second game The Redmen had a tougher time, but they prevailed beating the LCVI Spartans 4-0. The previous week the Redmen had demolished the Spartans, but because this was their second game the team was a little winded. "Our guys were a little fatigued and so they were a little slow, while LCVI came out smoking," said Tose.

The Redmen managed to take a 1-0 lead into halftime on the strength of a Jamie Thivierge goal, before the veter-

The Redmen's first play from scrimmage ended up as a 17 yard touchdown strike by Bacon. Bacon then scored again before Hughes hooked up with Kevin Morissette on another long pass-and-run.

With the score 48-1 after the convert try failed, coach Tim Davies told his troops to just run out the clock to try and not embarrass the Wildcats anymore. However, on the first play Bacon ran about 50 yards for the final score as major holes were created for him by the offensive line.

The defence played a major part in the game as well. The Redmen recovered several turnovers and the best offensive plays for the Wildcats were third down punt recoveries by their kicker.

The second game last Friday afternoon saw the junior Redmen defeat I. E. Weldon 24-6.

Both the junior and senior teams play two games this week at home: on Tuesday the teams play LCVI and on Friday Fenelon falls pays a visit to Haliburton. Games start at 2 p.m.

Haliburton upsets Lakers in opening playoff round

The Haliburton Westside Jug City had an outstanding weekend upsetting heavily favoured Collingwood Lakers in the opening round of the playoffs on September 26.

Haliburton toppled the second place Lakers, who had led the Muskoka District Soccer League for a large part of the year, 1-0 on the strength of a goal by Jan Haedicke. The win put Haliburton in the championship playoff round which was played this last weekend. Results will be published next Monday.

Haliburton's upset win was one of several in the opening playoff round. The Parry Sound Strikers edged third place Bracebridge Centennials 2-1 while lowly Borden smoked the Collingwood Knights 3-0. The Strikers were Haliburton's first opponent on Saturday.

The only team in the top four to advance was the Huntsville Strikers who easily defeated the Midland North Stars 4-0.

Jan Haedicke is in the top 10 scorers in the league with 10 - good enough for a tie of ninth place on the leader board.

Haliburton was also given fair play honours for receiving the fewest yellow cards of any team in the league.

MNR sponsors hunting program

The Ministry of Natural Resources is giving a special reward for successful hunters taking part in the annual hide collection program this season.

Beginning this fall, hide collectors will be handing out the first of a three year series of orange-blaze hats featuring silk-screened logos honouring deer, moose and bear.

Each year's design highlights the three most popular animals harvested starting with the deer logo in 1993. The moose and bear appear as background silhouettes.

The value of the collection is increased knowing the series is the work of Nipissing First Nation artist Perry McLeod-Shabogesic. The work of the North Bay area resident is represented in collections in Europe, Eastern Asia and across North America.

"When I designed the hat logos I was looking for a design that would have a contemporary look that would appeal to hunters who collect hats each year," said McLeod-Shabogesic.

The Union of Ontario Indians and the MNR are working together to establish greater Aboriginal participation in the operation of the program which will provide an economic boost to Aboriginal communities throughout Ontario. This will enable artisans to buy tanned hides or to obtain raw hides for home tanning.

Locally sponsored collection agents will distribute the hats upon receiving the hides, while BRT Trading Ltd. will make tanned hides available to artisans.

In Minden hunters can bring their hides to Minden Live Bait at the corner of Highways 35 and 121 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday to Saturday. The local contact for this collection is Jon Hill or you may call the area MNR office at 286-1521 for more information.

On a related matter, hunters who traditionally contribute jaw specimens each year can continue to do by bringing jaws to the Minden MNR office.

OPP asks hunters to use caution

With hunting season now on, Coboconk OPP is reminding hunters to exercise caution and respect while out hunting.

Every year the OPP receives complaints in regard to hunters. Most of these complaints relate to carelessness and involve trespassing, careless hunting and lost hunters.

Hunters should be prepared ahead of time by getting written permission to hunt. They should be aware of other hunters and people in the area. Hunters should always have a compass and a survival kit, as well as the right clothing because weather conditions change rapidly at this time of year.

All firearms must be in a case from 30 minutes after sunset to 30 minutes before sunrise. This means that all hunting must be done during daylight conditions.

Junior soccer team doubles up

ans took over and sparked the team. Bill Bradley, Parsons and Nico Haedicke took over the game in the second half to lead the Redmen. Nico scored twice while Ritchie Mills scored the other goal. Ryan Goodall also played an outstanding game at fullback, controlling the ball so the forwards could get more scoring chances. Tose said it was the best game Goodall has ever played.

The two wins assured the Redmen of a spot in the finals and home field advantage, even if they lose their next two games.

The juniors, meanwhile, also had a great day winning one and tying the other. The Redmen beat LCVI for the second time in two weeks, taking this one 5-0. Travis Leonard scored two as did Jason Corby. Nathan Stephenson had the other goal.

In their other game the Redmen came out flying and took a 3-0 lead against the Weldon Wildcats. Andrew Wilbee with a pair and Jason Corby with a single were the scorers. However, the Wildcats came back with three goals of their own in the second half to tie the game up.

The Redmen assured themselves of a spot in the finals against the Wildcats as LCVI has lost all four games and can not catch them. However, to get home field advantage the Redmen have to beat the Wildcats next week in Lindsay. Both the junior and senior teams have the week off.

Chamber needs to boost public image

Enthusiasm will grow if public is aware of the good work, says guest speaker

The Chamber of Commerce needs to raise its profile in the community, says the Highlands' new economic development co-ordinator.

"Most people don't know what the chamber of commerce does," Bryan Brown told the small gathering at the chamber's annual meeting last Wednesday. Brown was not criticizing the chamber, but noting the general low profile of the group within the county.

Brown is the co-ordinator of a federal Community Futures program, which is just getting off the ground in Haliburton County. He was the guest speaker at Wednesday's chamber meeting.

Since starting work here a month ago, Brown says he has been travelling around the county trying to get a sense of the area's strengths and weaknesses "In the month that I've been here, I've been a tourist." Through this research he says he has discovered that few people really know what the chamber does here.

Brown says the chamber is too busy doing things to go out and tell people what it is doing. "They're not glory people," he said. "They're not interested in having stories done." This approach is understandable, he said, but it is important that someone be singing praises about the chamber's accomplishments in order to maintain a high level of enthusiasm. "Someone has to make sure people know what's being done," he said.

The level of enthusiasm for chamber activities was reflected in the poor showing at Wednesday's meeting. About 35 people attended the session at Deer Lodge. And although county council provides financial support to the chamber, only two of its members were in attendance.

"What would have been really nice is to see all 10 reeves here," said Brown.

The chamber's main focus has been on marketing the Highlands to the outside world. Marketing Committee Chairman Brian Dean commented on the trade shows and advertising programs. He said most of these initiatives have been successful in drawing visitors to the county.

This year, said Dean, the committee will be split in two in order to improve the reception that visitors receive when they arrive here. It is not enough to just attract new visitors, he said. There has to be an all-out effort to make them feel welcome and keep them coming back.

The in-house wing of the marketing committee will be putting together a training package for businesses to instruct employees on how to relate better with tourists. Dean said there are some "horror stories" about the reception some visitors have received in the Highlands. He said it would be valuable to provide employees with some training to make sure these situations are not repeated.

External marketing will continue to be the chamber's major thrust. Dean said the chamber hopes to continue attending the trade shows that have proven to be effective.

Last year the chamber was represented at six shows, and Dean said the one in Ottawa was the best value. Many of the people at this show were from Quebec and Dean said there seemed to be a lot of visitors from that province this summer.

Other shows included the Toronto Sportsmen Show, the International Plowing Match in Lindsay, The Toronto Travel and Leisure Show and the Pickering Fishing Show.

The chamber worked together with neighbouring areas at the Sportsmen Show to build an impressive booth, he said.

The Travel and Leisure Show is one that will likely be dropped from this year's line-up. Dean said this specialized show targets travel agents, who are mainly interested in out-of-province destinations.

The fishing show is a good one, said Dean, since it targets a different audience than other shows. Fishing is something this county has taken for granted, said Dean. The chamber has never attempted to actively promote the highlands on that basis.

In terms of advertising, the chamber is pulling its ads from the Toronto Star and sinking money into radio advertising. Dean said the Star ads were expensive and unimpressive. In their place, the chamber has bought 2,000 spots on Country 59. Dean said some of the ads are being linked to the trade show, which is proving to work well.

In addition to the presentation of reports, Wednesday's meeting was also for the election of six new members to the board. Since there were only six nominations for the positions, the vacancies were filled by acclamation.

The acclaimed board members include: Brian Moore from Westside Jug City, who will be serving a second term; Derek Lowry from Moore Lake in, who is also serving a second term; John Mulder from Countrywide Haliburton Realty; Mary Jane Williams from Mr. D's Donuts and Restaurant; Larry Tupling from the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association, and Carol Moffatt from Rudy's Restaurant.

Big Buddy is a big success

Agency seeks more students to be a friend to a young child

by Andy Holloway

Sometimes all it takes to make a child's day is to have a friend to share it with.

That is why SIRCH is looking for volunteers to become Big Buddies to the many children in the county who need an older friend for a role model, to help them learn about life and to have a bit of fun.

The program doesn't take a lot of time, but the effects can be lifelong. Brenda Bourgeois says having a big buddy opens a lot of doors to her son, Andrew, that he wouldn't otherwise get. Bourgeois has four children, three of them girls, and Andrew has Downs Syndrome. Giving children the one-on-one attention they want and need is difficult, which is where a Big Buddy can, and did, step in.

> "It's good for him to have someone special to him that he can just go off and do something special between the two of them"

"It's good for Andrew to have someone special to him that he can just go off with that person and do something between the two of them," says Bourgeois.

"He doesn't have his sisters after him and it's his time to do something special between him and that person."

Oddly enough, because there is a lack of males in the Big Buddy program Andrew was paired with a young woman. Bourgeois says, in her case, she would like to see Andrew paired with a male because he's around girls all day.

Andrew has had two Big Buddies since the family moved to the county. Prior to that, Bourgeois says they had a similar set-up in Ajax. The past two summers a university student has been a Big Buddy, but university students have to leave after the summer so Bourgeois and others are looking for high school students and other young adults to fill the gap. This creates a problem for children like Andrew who take time to warm up to new people, says Bourgeois, so longer-term buddies are needed. "They were just getting comfortable with each other and then she was gone."

Teenagers are perfect because younger children love spending time with them because they're full of energy and have a zest for life that hasn't been diminished yet. The energy is important because it rubs off on younger children and brightens their day.

Where the buddies go is not as important as the attention that Andrew receives, but some of the activities Bourgeois says the two enjoyed included going to the park to play on the swings, going to CHACE Place or just talking or playing inside the house.

"A lot of the time she would come into the home and they would go to an area by themselves like to his room or downstairs and they would read, or colour or play games, just do one-on-one things with each other."

Because Andrew has Downs Syndrome and has had a kidney

September was passable, but not as good as last year. The average temperature was 2C (5F) cooler and the rainfall was considerably more with 5.4 inches falling versus 3.7 inches last year. The accumulation was due to three days with very heavy rain, September 3, 15 and 27.

On September 30, both this year and last year) we had snow - very light flurries, granted, but at least a warning!

School board resolves two social contract problems

by Andy Holloway

The school board has solved two of its social contract obligations, but there are still several left.

Cheryl Murdoch (Lutterworth) said the board had reached a tentative agreement with CUPE, Local 142 and with its non-union staff. Murdoch sits on the board's negotiating team which is trying to reach a settlement with its unions because of the province's social contract cutbacks.

The contract with CUPE extends the current contract until December, 1994. That contract calls for no salary increases during the length of the deal. If there is a deficit in this area, then the four staff members making over $30,000 will have unpaid days.

The deal with non-union staff splits into two parts. Non-union administrative staff has already been cut, but the agreement calls for any deficit to be made up by unpaid days.

Non-union office staff will experience staff reductions and unpaid days as well, to meet its agreement if there is a deficit situation.

Despite the agreements the board's negotiating team still has a long road ahead with agreements with the major teaching unions expected to be resolved this month. However, the board "has got a foot in the door" said Murdoch.

Lloyd Griffiths (Cardiff) said it was refreshing to work with the two groups because both sides were co-operative and wanted to reach an agreement quickly.

The social contract between the province and school boards was signed and ratified in August. However, individual school boards were then given additional time to reach agreements with their employees and unions.

Helping children grow up

transplant, people may think a Big Buddy needs to have a lot of background training and education, but this is not the case.

In Andrew's case, Bourgeois met with the girl to make sure they would be compatible and then passed along any information about Andrew that she would be required to know - for example because of the transplant he can not play contact sports.

The only real requirements are a willingness to enrich the life of a child and the time to give. Big Buddy candidates must also agree to an OPP and Children's Aid screening.

Some university and college courses require volunteer service and this has to be one of the more enjoyable possibilities. And if you want to become a teacher in today's world, a lot of volunteer experience with children is needed just to be accepted into teacher's college. SIRCH also offers a yearly bursary of $200 which goes to an individual who is graduating from high school and has volunteered time to work with children.

Besides, the time is well spent. The one word Bourgeois uses to describe the experience on both sides is a simple one - "positive, very positive."

If you want to become a Big Buddy or want more information on the program call Betty Pollard at SIRCH, 457-1742.

FEATURE ARTIST: Paul Livingston displays the original painting he donated to the Lindsay Chapter of Ducks Unlimited. Livingston, of Burketon, Ontario, was chosen as the DU chapter's feature artist for 1993. He chose the great blue heron as the subject for this work because of the powerful majesty of the bird and its connection to the wetlands theme. The Lindsay Ducks Unlimited Dinner and Auction is Friday, October 15 at the Moose Lodge in Lindsay. Coby wants docks repaired

Businesses, reeve fed up with federal government dragging their heels

by Andy Holloway

Somerville Township is fed up with the deteriorating condition of the Coboconk docks and tried to bring some public attention to their plight last Thursday as about 25 residents, local reeve John Huke and Reform Party candidate Barry Devolin met.

"The township has been trying to get assistance from Parks Canada with no success and we've even gone as far as to threaten not to renew the lease for the dock," says Huke.

The dock at both the southern and northern ends of Coboconk is in such bad shape that Huke and Somerville Township now have about 150 letters supporting their position from boaters who have stopped in town.

Huke says they have tried for many years to get some action from the federal government, but have received very little in return for their efforts. However, the government does recognize the docks are in bad shape because it put a sign warning boaters to use the dock at their own risk at the northern dock, which is in Bexley Township. The feds also put a bilingual sign at the dock as they have at most other government owned docks.

The township would need between $50,000 and $100,000 to repair the docks depending on how extensive the repairs were.

Perhaps this is one of the reasons Reformer Barry Devolin showed up. Huke says the township invited the other camps to show up as well, but since they didn't he said they are probably busy with other events. Devolin agrees the docks are in bad repair.

There wasn't a whole lot Devolin could do, but he did offer to try and help by sending another letter to the contact person at Parks Canada.

Devolin says the fact that the federal government has enough money to put up "beautiful" bilingual signs means there is money in the kitty, but it is being spent elsewhere. Devolin says the issue with the signs is wider spread than just in Coboconk.

"There putting up all these bilingual signs in Toronto. They say they don't have enough money to fix the roads, yet they've got millions of dollars to put up all these French language signs. People are saying something is not right here."

One of the Reform Party platforms is to eliminate official bilingualism except in areas where there is a demonstrable, public need.

Coboconk businesses also wanted to put up a directory at the southern dock to show the location of all the different services in the village. However, Parks Canada sent back a list of regulations, one of which is that the sign must be bilingual, to which they must adhere. Devolin says the businesses feel since there are not many French tourists visiting tha area, then there is no need to have a bilingual sign which adds more expense and makes the sign harder to read.

Huke says the businesses depend on tourism to survive, so good docks are needed to entice people to stop. The township rents the land from the federal government. Although it did build one of the docks, the federal government built the other. Both are in need of repair, says Huke.

NOW YOU CAN HELP THE ENVIRONMENT FROM THE COMFORT OF YOUR OWN HOME.

Introducing Pureflame†, the environmentally sensitive heating oil from Shell that's unlike any other heating oil in Canada. With Pureflame you can enjoy all the comfort of heating with oil, with less environmental impact.

A special additive called Ferrocene makes Pureflame burn more completely than regular heating oil.

So in conventional furnaces Pureflame can cut harmful smoke emissions by up to 50%, reduce soot by up to 46% and reduce your home's fuel consumption up to 2%.*

It's time to turn green and heat clean with Pureflame. Call the Shell agent listed below for more information.

*Based on controlled laboratory tests in a furnace equipped with a conventional head burner. Actual results will vary depending on burner and furnace design, fuel consumption, operating conditions and other factors. Benefits will not be as dramatic with a properly maintained flame retention head burner. In one test a fuel reduction of 6% was achieved.

Everybody wants to help riding

by Andy Holloway

Dennis Drainville may have left the Ontario legislature, but there's no shortage of people who want to represent the riding's constituents.

The latest to throw her arms this way is Ontario Liberal leader Lyn McLeod whose office is now open to residents from the Haliburton-Victoria riding who need help or have a concern.

Earlier in September, provincial Conservative leader Mike Harris offered his help as did MPP Al McLean, the member from Simcoe East.

You can also call the ministry concerned with your problem. There is a toll-free information number 1-800-267-8097 which can help you or check the blue pages in the telephone directory.

The riding has been without representation since early September when Drainville decided to leave the provincial government to test the federal election waters.

Meanwhile, the local provincial NDP riding office is still disappointed with Drainville for leaving the area without representation, even though he was no longer a member of the NDP. However, so far no one from the NDP has offered to take up the concerns of the riding's residents.

The NDP has not set a by-election date yet although they now only have about five months to do so. By-elections must be called within six months of the seat becoming vacant.

Residents with a provincial concern can call Mike Harris at 1-800-665-6453, or Lyn McLeod's office at 1-800-567-1995, or Al McLean's office at 1-416-325-3855.

October is Community Support month

Did you know that nearly one in 10 people in Ontario live alone, feel isolated or are unable to cope with simple daily chores like preparing meals and house cleaning?

This month has been proclaimed as "Community Support Month" by the Minister of Health Ruth Grier. Haliburton County Home Support's committed volunteers deliver a wide range of services which assist the elderly, disabled and others with special needs to remain safely and comfortably in their homes and communities.

Last year HCHSS delivered 3929 hot or frozen meals, maintained 67 emergency response units for those persons who required help for medical or security reasons, provided 191 hours of home help and maintenance and transported people on 954 trips to medical appointments, essential shopping and outings that are vital to their mental and physical health. Volunteers within the organization also gave 1400 hours of their time to visit or call people to make sure they are coping and provided 1270 meals (through community minded restaurant suppliers) to seniors and those physically challenged persons who wished to socialize outside the home.

If you wish to help, give the HCHSS a call at 457-2941.

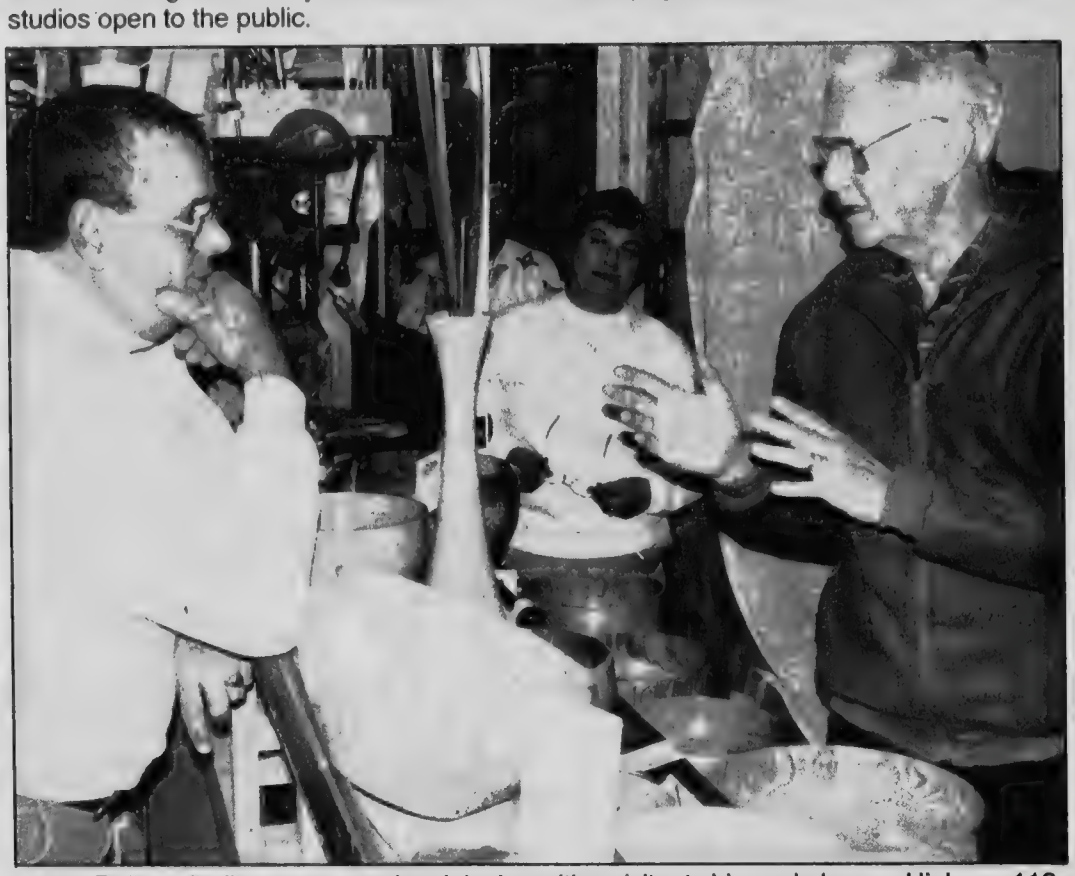
They came, they saw, they toured

Thousands of visitors combed the back roads of Haliburton County this past weekend to take part in the annual Studio Tour, an opportunity to visit 22 studios featuring the work of some 37 artists and craftspeople. Judging by the traffic Saturday, the tour, in its sixth year, once again attracted large number of visitors, including several bus tours. In addition to having an opportunity to meet the artists in their working environment and discuss their work with them, the visitors also enjoyed the Haliburton Highlands at its colourful best. Initial reports from the participants indicated they were pleased with the number of visitors and the sales generated by the weekend traffic. These pages feature just a few of the many studios open to the public.

Mary Wallace demonstrated her silk painting technique for visitors who stopped at her studio. The scene she was creating captured the beauty just outside her studio window, the trees and sparkle of Lake Kashagawigamog. Floral and scenic watercolours by Audry Grant were also on display at the Wallace studio.



Derek Rolfe, left, discusses wood and design with a visitor to his workshop on Highway 118. Sculptor Gordon Freer shared display space with his work in different kinds of soapstone.

Knowing that many on the tour would choose to park at the end of the private road and walk in to their studio, painter Gary and weaver Judy Chapman, provided humourous signs of encouragement along the way. For many, the walk through the fall foliage was an enjoyable adjunct to the visits to the artists studios.

Studio Tour '93

Visitors admired the intricate marquetry of Kevin Dunlop, who shared display space at the Glen Diezel stop on the tour. Dunlop told the visitors he drew his inspiration from the Canadian wilderness, finding beauty in the rugged terrain which played such an important role in the work of the Group of Seven. Marquetry is the art of creating a scene from individual pieces of wood of different hues and texture, pieced together much like a jigsaw puzzle.

With samples of her work hanging in the foreground, Wendy Landurantaye discusses the art of stained glass with a visitor to her Minden studio. Decorative painter Marion Kinsman shared the display space.

Countrywide Real Estate replaces Case at the corner

New agency with familiar faces

Major changes have taken place in the Haliburton County Real Estate business in the past month, and word is , there are more on the horizon.

One of the biggest changes , however, was the purchase of the Robert E. Case office by the partnership of John Mulder and Doug Johnson. The deal was concluded September 7 and marked the end of months of negotiations.

The purchase introduces a new national marketing name to the Highlands, Countrywide Real Estate. "We chose Countrywide after looking at a number of different companies," Mulder commented from the company's head office on Minden's Main Street just off Highway 35 . "We felt the all-Canadian company offered the best service for our clients and nation-wide support."

While the affiliation with a national real estate company provides access to referrals from 5400 agents and offices across the country, it is the service buyers and sellers receive through the local office which the partners say is most important.

"This is a people-oriented business," Johnson explains. "For that reason we have been very selective in the agents we have chosen to represent our business."

Mulder concurs, noting that while the name on the sign is important, it is the one-to-one contact that people buying or selling real estate experience that is paramount to the success of an agency.

The Countrywide office includes a number of sales agents from the former Case office, but the change has also attracted others.

The roster of sales agents, in addition to Mulder and Johnson include, Tom Gardner, Jack Kinsman, Don Gillespie, Donna Lee, David Lee, Nancy Rogers, Doug Armstrong and Gloria Carnochan. Also joining the new team is real estate veteran, and former manager of the Case office, Alf Wickens. More agnts are expected to join the staff in the near future. Rounding out the staff are administrator Sandy Johnson and secretary Tammy Walker

One of the first moves the new agency carried out was to expand its visibility in the Highlands.

"In addition to the Minden office, we have sub-offices in Moore falls and Kennisis Lake," Mulder said. They hope to open an office shortly in Haliburton village to round-out their exposure in the local market.

At the moment Countrywide is using the former Case office, with a fresh coat of eye-catching red, white and blue paint, as its base, but the partners have plans to replace the existing structure. A 25,000 square foot building is on the drawing board for the corner location It will include a 12,000 square foot real estate office and commercial lease space. For the moment however, Johnson and Mulder are concentrating on establishing the new name in the highly competitive Highlands real estate market.

"We plan to be 'number one' in Haliburton County," Mulder and Johnson conclude optimistically.

Devolin deflects Reform critics invited the audience to make the decision. Aware of the time constraints, Devolin kept his remarks brief and to the point. With his opening remarks, he focused on just one issue: parliamentary reform. "This is the single most important issue that needs to be changed," he said. Party discipline has grown to excess with MPs being forced to vote along party lines, he said. "This is the biggest difference between Reform and other parties."

Drainville, on the other hand, was on the attack from the word go. "Watch your pensions, folks", he repeated with approval from the largely elderly crowd. He warned that seniors and the unemployed will be the main targets of Conservative and Reform policies. He also criticized the Liberals and Conservatives for refusing to tax large corporations. The Independent candidate said governments have failed to collect about $25-billion from these big companies and the front-running parties don't plan to make significant changes.

NDP candidate Cathy Vainio offered many of the same opinions as as Drainville, but didn't earn the same audience approval. She was critical of the Tory government, saying it has pitted Quebec against the rest of Canada. She said Conservative and Reform policies threaten Canada's social programs.

Liberal candidate John O'Reilly reiterated his party's priority of jobs, jobs and jobs. Brandishing a copy of "The Liberal Plan for Canada", he sideswiped the Conservatives by saying his party has a "serious, realistic plan" for jobs and economic recovery.

In a dramatic presentation, and holding aloft pictures of his two children, Marton Doyle of the Naqtional Party said, "These are the reasons I decided to run...for their future and the future of our country."

The Kinsmen demolition derby is slated for this Saturday, starting at 11 a.m. at the Minden fair grounds.

Chamber honours its finest

'The best of what life in a small community can be'

Highlanders bestow Creighton Feir with distinguished award

Creighton Feir, Highlander of the Year.

by Russ Duhaime

The little things can make an enormous difference to the quality of life in a small town, and this year the chamber of commerce is recognizing a lifetime of contribution with its Highlander of the Year award.

Creighton Feir, who "represented the best of what life in a small community can be", is being honoured as the recipient of the Highlands' most distinguished award.

The former advertising manager for the Haliburton County Echo died suddenly last May at 66 years of age. The award was presented to his daughter, Wendy, by Echo publisher Len Pizzey.

Feir was the sort of person who led by example and expected no recognition in return. His respect in the community was a result of his sincere interest the welfare of his neighbours throughout the county.

Pizzey delivered an eloquent address to the small gathering at Deer Lodge for the chamber's annual meeting Wednesday. He said Feir was his friend, co-worker and mentor. "We buoyed each other up, shared our thoughts, and I like to think we embraced the same values," said Pizzey.

"In many ways Creighton represented the best of what life in a small community can be. He trusted people. He was interested in their well-being. He believed that if people treated each other with respect, if they brought integrity and high ethical standards to all their business dealings, if they took the time to listen to each other and to laugh with each other, their future would be brighter, no matter how difficult the problems of the moment might seem."

In a sense, Feir's most valuable contribution to the Highlands was his unique ability to make people feel good, to make them laugh in spite of their troubles. Pizzey recalled a conversation with a business owner soon after Creighton's loss: " 'We'll miss him,' she said. 'Who else will be able to come into my store and make me laugh on a bleak day in February when I haven't had a customer all morning?'

"Who else indeed?"

Echo Publisher Len Pizzey presented the Highlander of the Year award to Creighton Feir's daughter, Wendy, during the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting on Wednesday.

Business of the Year

Dollo's IGA in Minden was recognized for its commitment to the community during last Wednesday's annual meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce. The award was presented to Joe Dollo Sr. by Chamber director Brian Moore. Dollo's has been a thriving business in Minden for almost half a century and has always been a strong supporter of community activities. The store's sports team sponsorships and its new Trees for Canada initiative are examples of the contributions Dollo's IGA makes to the area. The owners and employees are also active participants in a variety of community activities and events.

Loggers benefit from new fees

Small, independent loggers will benefit from changes to stumpage fees, says the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The fees for timber headed to sawmills and pulp mills are being adjusted for the next three months in response to concerns raised by independent loggers. There has been on-going discussion with the forest industry to identify ways to make the stumpage fee system more understandable, says Natural Resources Minister Howard Hampton.

Because softwood prices are strong, the stumpage fee for this timber will be maintained at $6.01 per cubic metre until the end of the year.

The stumpage fee for timber headed to pulp mills will drop to $5.85 per cubic metre because this sector of the forest industry is struggling.

The ministry has also introduced a technical change so that the stumpage fee charged for wood will be determined by the destination of the wood. All timber going to pulp mills will receive the prevailing pulp mill fee. Timber heading to sawmills will receive the prevailing fee for that sector.

Other changes include an equalized rate of 82 cents per cubic metre for poplar and white birch; a base rate of $5.11 and 65 cents for Grade one and two hardwood, and a base rate for fuelwood of 65 cents.

Students expected to move next week

by Andy Holloway

The following brief items were discussed at the Haliburton County Board of Education last Tuesday.

Briefly
School Board Notes

Stouffer update

Students should be able to move back into Archie Stouffer Elementary School next Tuesday if all goes well with construction this week.

Education director Brad Saunders said power and heat are now running through the school while paving the driveways and installing the floors will be done this week. The board has already taken over two class rooms and "are very much on target to have students in there by the Tuesday after Thanksgiving," said Saunders.

The library, gymnasium and new class room wing will not be completed until December which could cause safety problems. "Safety is of paramount importance," said Business Administrator Jim Bradley. He said there are already plans in place to cordon off the construction areas to ensure curious students do not go into those areas.

Fire alarms were installed and tested last week and will, no doubt, be tested again today (Monday) when the fire marshall pays a visit.

And while most people complained about the late delivery of the school's windows it was actually a blessing in disguise because it kept the school well-ventilated and the smell of chemicals and paints should not be overpowering, although the air will continue to be monitored.

The board hopes to debenture the project next summer when all the costs and provincial grants are finalized. Until then the board will borrow money to pay its fees relating to the school.

JK delays

Junior kindergarten may be law, but the board hopes to delay implementing the program here until 1997. Saunders said the board's only legal option to keep JK out of Haliburton for as long as possible is to apply for a delay. However, since the province has not made its delaying plans final the board has a bit of leeway to come up with a plan. The Education Committee was instructed by the board to revise and update the board's plan for implementing JK and bring the plan forward for recommendation at the November board meeting.

The board already has a proposed plan, but it has never been brought to trustees for approval.

More rising costs

Trustees voted to support a motion stating their objection to third-party billing in the province with regard to health costs. The Ministry of Health reached an agreement with the Ontario Medical Association on third party billing early this year. As a result some tests and physicals are not covered by OHIP anymore.

An example of the potential costs of this is already happening with bussing companies. LeRoy Eager (Stanhope) is a bus driver and he told the board that the cost of the physicals drivers must undergo is no longer covered by OHIP. As a result the drivers are negotiating to have the bus companies cover the costs. Those costs will undoubtedly be passed on to the school board and then the taxpayers. Eager said the cost of a physical is not much when you only have to have one every five years, but bus drivers over 65 must have annual check-ups which can be costly in the long run.

Director Saunders said the concept of third party billing has large implications for the board especially when the province is cutting its transportation grants to boards. "It's just making things tougher all around," said Saunders.

Superintendent Robinson said other things which could be affected include insurance and medical coverage for sports and other school activities.

Five times family

Family members from five different generations met on Louisa Loucks 90th birrthday on September 1 in Guelph. The family met at the home of Loucks' son, Walter. Louisa (centre) was joined by her daughter Lenora Biagi, grandson Dennis Byers, great-granddaughter Cynthia Byers and her great-great-grandson Cody Byers.

Province to test grade 9 students' English skills

English follies

The province will be testing grade nine students to find out their level of English proficiency later this month and in the spring, reported Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson. The tests will measure the reading and writing skills the students "hopefully have" said Robinson.

For a two week period grade nine students across Ontario will be using their acquired English skills with the theme of nutrition. Students will have to do research, write reports and tests which will count in their final grade. The tests will be marked locally and then sent to the education ministry to be checked by retired teachers.

Robinson said the students would not experience any disadvantage compared to students before them because they would be practicing the same skills they would have been using anyway - the only difference is the topic. Robinson said the testing is just the "tip of the iceberg" and says province-wide math testing "can't be far behind."

CHACE exempt from social contract

CHACE Place
by Sue Valm

Ever wonder what you can do to make your child's adjustment to day care an easier transition? As a care giver, would you like to learn or share strategies that help children adjust to care? A new evening Caregiver Workshop Series currently offered at both CHACE Resource Centres will help to answer these and many other questions related to providing child care in your home. Call Clarene (286-1770) or Katherine (457-2989) to find out more information.

For those of you looking for licensed child care, CHACE also operates a child care centre on Prentice Street in Minden. This home-like centre is able to care for 21 children aged 15 months to five years of age and 15 children aged six to 12. Subsidy is available to families that qualify and can cover up to 80 per cent of the daily cost.

CHACE also operates a licensed Private Home Day Care network. We currently have three homes located in various parts of the county. Families may apply for subsidy for this program as well.

We have several very special thank yous to extend this month. Firstly, to Roberts-Austin Fuels, Northernways Transit and Sid Stamp Fuels for donating the costs of the children's programming and art room supplies at the Haliburton and Minden Resource Centres for the month of September.

Special thanks, too, are extended to Dawson Insurance and Floyd Hall Insurance for allowing CHACE to use their store front space as set up for the recent sidewalk sales.

The ticket sales for the original sketch of an area landscape donated by local artist Michael Hughes are off to a good start. If you have yet to see this powerful piece, it has just completed a viewing at the PineStone Inn and will be on display at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery the last two weeks of September. From there it will move to Fleming College, Norman Sisco Campus, for the first two weeks in October. The picture will then circulate on a two-week cycle at the following businesses: Floyd Hall Insurance; Toronto Dominion Bank. Starting November 29, the picture will start a weekly circulation at our Minden Resource Centre, the Bank of Montreal, and will finish at the Haliburton Resource Centre in time for the draw on December 20. Keep an eye out for it as you patronize these local businesses. CHACE thanks these businesses for their support and assistance with this event..

Finally, and perhaps most significantly, is the great news surrounding the social contract negotiations as they relate to child care services. In response to the powerful message communicated to the Ministry of Community and Social Services by Resource Centres that they should be classified as a child care service yet not exempt from the Social Contract negotiations like all other child care programs, CHACE has been notified that ". . . at this time, Resource Centres will be considered exempt from the .75 per cent reductions from direct operating budgets."

Safe evening wear for lovers who care

The local health unit is launching an AIDS awareness program with the cooperation of local bars throughout Haliburton, Victoria and Northumberland counties.

Matchbook sized packages of condoms bearing the slogan "Evening Wear for Lovers Who Care" will be distributed to patrons of local bars and taverns within the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit.

Patrons can take the packages for their own use or to give to a friend. The health unit advises that people should learn more about condoms and talk about them more freely.

This week is National AIDS Awareness Week and unfortunately, during the week, thousands of people will put themselves at risk of getting AIDS. Most of these are young adults entering the prime of their lives. All could have easily avoided infection.

AIDS can infect anyone. All it takes is one act of unprotected sexual intercourse and there is no second chance. The only protection is the proper use of condoms every time sexual intercourse occurs.

Symptoms of AIDS can start as early as six weeks or as late as 10 years after exposure.

During this time an infected person can look and feel well, and pass the infection along to others.

You can't tell if you are infected or not and you can't tell is a partner is infected so it makes sense to protect yourself and your partner.

For more information about AIDS call your local health unit or the Peterborough AIDS Resource Network.

Pensions, allowances rose on October 1

As of October 1, 1993, Old Age Security, Guaranteed Income Supplement, Spouses Allowance and Widowed Spouses Allowance will increase.

Old Age Security pensions will rise from $383.51 to $384.66 per month. Guaranteed Income Supplement maximum will increase from $455.76 to $457.13 for a single person and for a married recipient from $296.87 to $297.76. The maximum Spouses Allowance paid to low-income individuals between 60-64 who are married to GIS recipients will increase from $680.38 to $682.42. The maximum Widowed Spouses Allowance paid to low-income widowed persons 60-64 rises from $751.13 to $753.38. When applying for Canada Pension during 1993 the maximum amount that can be received at age 65 is $667.32.

If you have a question regarding these new rates or need help completing an application, contact your nearest Information Centre in Haliburton or Minden.

Kawartha Dairy hit by thieves

Minden OPP is investigating a break and enter into Kawartha Dairy which occurred sometime during the late evening of September 24 or the early morning.

The person responsible pried open a front window into the building and stole approximately $300 in cash. Anyone with any information on the incident is asked to call Minden OPP at 286-1431.

Legion welcomes new members

Service Clubs

by Dave McAdam, Legion Branch 636

Branch 636 as usual has had a busy September. We paraded again with many of our comrades to the Kinmount Fair on Warrior's Day. As usual Branch 141, Kinmount, proved themselves gracious hosts. Rosettes were given to each participating branch by M.P. Bill Scott.

Other activities include a Pot Luck meal by the 636 seniors group on September 13, a fun Trivia Night on the 15th and a Scottish Pub Night on the 18th. Comrade Charley McDonald kindly served up a delicious meal of Scottish meat pie, vegetables and all the trimmings. Afterwards the party moved into the games room (except the Euchre players.) The snooker, darts and shuffleboard were quite competitive and to our pleasure there were many young people present. This branch is seeking the participation of young people. We hope the young members will feel free to use the branch more frequently. Those who are not members, we hope they will look into possible memberships or at least a fraternal affiliation.

September 19th was the start of Legion Week in Canada. We hosted the Minden Cemetery Decoration Day in which not only did branch members participate but members of the community joined us. We were pleased to have Father Rabour of Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church, Reverend Walford-Davis of Minden United and Pastor Fast of Minden Bible Church accompany our Padre, Father Parker of St. Paul's Anglican Church to take the service. We also wish to thank Damon Smith the bugler, and the ladies of In Harmony for their respective talents lending dignity to the occasion.

During the week of September 19th we saw a number of new faces in our lounge. We sincerely hope any who came felt welcome.

A number of events are in the offing. When this goes to press Zone F4 will have had their fall convention at Brechen Legion on October 3rd. We are in hopes that Branch 636 will be well represented as in the past.

Another branch fun day is expected October 10th from 12:30 p.m. Trivia Night again on the 13th and our branch ladies are hosting a branch (open to all) on Sunday, October 17th between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Cost $8.50 each. Also note a Legion Steak Night at 6:30 p.m. October 23rd. Why not bring your smiling faces to one or more of these occasions as the comradeship is usually great.

Comrades Jack and Sharon Sykes are now picking up steam in their preparations for the Legions annual Poppy Campaign. The members are reminded of their oath taken on initiation to actively participate in Poppy Campaigns. This discipline give true meaning to our motto, Memoriam Eorum Retinebemus (We will Remember Them).

We are pleased to report some of our members who have been hospitalized are now home: W.E. (Sam) Rogers; Ann McAdam and Helen Johnson. Should any persons become aware of members or affiliates who have taken ill, we would appreciate notice of such to our Service Officer Comrade Bud Murray, call 489-2657.

I would also add that the current issue of the Blue Beret Bulletin is in our lobby. Anyone wishing one may pick it up there.

Bark Lake camp competes with private sector, writer contends

The following letter is addressed to Premier Bob Rae.

Dear Mr. Rae:

I am looking for an independent assessment of the Bark Lake Ontario Camp Leadership Centre. Such an assessment should be undertaken by the Minister of Finance to determine whether the financial cost of this operation to taxpayers is warranted.

While your minister has endeavored to justify the existence of the Bark Lake Leadership Centre, in reality she has supported the reasoning why the camp should be closed or disposed of — namely the substantial expenditures being passed on to taxpayers and the unjustified purpose of the facility i.e. leadership training. Frankly it is difficult to understand why the government should be spending millions of dollars of the taxpayers money to support leadership training — whatever that is? As I see it, in reality the facility only provides free holidays for a great many people as well as a paid vacation for the number of instructors who are employed — all at the taxpayers' expense.

Your minister indicates that the Bark Lake facility is to be placed on a revenue generating basis. It is most difficult to understand why a tourism ministry should be going into direct competition with tourism and private industry as this should more properly be provided by the private sector.

Casino is preferred to leadership camp

It is apparent from the number of ministries/departments that have been involved with this facility in the past that it has been a "hot potato" from a government perspective as it apparently has been thrashed around in attempts to justify the camp's existence.

As the facility continues to expand, its financial needs will grow in a cancerous manner and it will very likely become a greater white elephant similar to that of the Minaki Lodge episode.

Government bureaucracy is prone to always trying to spend their way out of difficult situations without consideration to the taxpayer when in many cases they should cut their loss and run.

Possibly in desperation you could be thinking of turning this dead horse into a gambling casino at a future date as a way out. A casino would at least employ more people and possibly pay for itself.

I would like to be provided with financial statements detailing value of all fixed assets as well as operating statements for the last three years.

With government funding having been provided for the facility's fixed assets and this funding forming part of the government's overall debt it would seem only proper that interest on funding for the camp should be included in the operating statement. On this basis the taxpayer can get a true picture of the extraordinary amount of money this facility is costing them per year. No mention has been made regarding repayment of the government funding for fixed assets and operating deficits to date.

With regard to the government's objective to dispose of Crown assets, this facility is a prime candidate. For this reason I reiterate that it is necessary this matter be subject to an independent assessment by the Ministry of Finance.

It is beyond comprehension that government, in its endeavor to reduce the deficit, is cutting back on essential services such as hospital care and pecking away at the incomes of wage earners and senior citizens while at the same time is spending millions on such frivolous endeavors as this.

In looking at the local economy in the counties of Haliburton/Victoria it is quite obvious that the Bark Lake venture provides next to no employment locally and contributes very little, if at all, to the local business community.

Following your response it is my objective to arrange a meeting between my colleagues and the manager of the Bark Lake Leadership Centre.

I await your reply.

TSW report

The Haliburton area lakes averaged 57.9 per cent on September 20, down 3 per cent from the previous Monday. This was still a slightly surplus condition in Haliburton, but considerably less than the 61.3 per cent at this time in 1992. Higher than normal flows were still being run from the Haliburton lakes, but nothing like last year's amounts.

Rain was expected several times in the days since the last report on September 17, but nothing really came until the morning of September 23. As a result, it appears the surplus is gone from the Kawarthas and Lake Simcoe-Couchiching. Flows of the Otonabee, Trent and Severn rivers are now running less than their long-term averages.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIPS OF ANSON, HINDON AND MINDEN

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING
REGARDING PROPOSED ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

Please be advised that the Corporation of the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden will be holding a Public Meeting pursuant to Section 34 of the Planning Act (1983) to consider an Amendment to Zoning By-law No. 86-26 as amended to change the zoning from Tourist Commercial (C-4) to Residential Limited Service (RLS) to fulfill the conditions of severance.

The subject property is located on Mountain Lake, in Part of Lot 3, Concession 6, in the Township of Minden. A key map showing the location of the lands affected by this amendment is attached to this notice.

The Public Meeting will be held at 6:30 a.m. on October 14, 1993 at the Minden Council Chambers in Minden, Ontario.

A copy of the proposed amendment is available for review in the Municipal Offices during regular office hours. Anyone wishing to address Council with respect to the proposal may do so at the Public Meeting. Persons unable to attend the Public Meeting may provide written comments to Council with respect to the proposal up until time of the Public Meeting.

The public is still waiting to implement solutions

Reflections
by David Suzuki

The public is well aware of environmental problems and is ready to act on solutions. The challenge is to find real ways for people to "live more lightly on the Earth."

Often the hard part is overcoming the mindsets that prevent us from seeing new solutions or impede their implementation.

Take the car. Automobiles are deeply embedded in our culture and our economy. One in every seven jobs is car-related. But are we also aware they are a major contributor to excess carbon dioxide in the upper atmosphere pollution and global warming? In the long run, we will have to wean ourselves off the car, using buses, walking or biking far more. But to begin the transition we need something that offers the convenience and versatility of the car.

So I was thrilled to talk to Amory Lovins last month about his ideas on cars. Amory is a founder and vice-president of the Rocky Mountain Institute in Boulder, Colo., and has been an eloquent and persuasive proponent of energy conservation. But these days he's talking a lot about "super cars."

In the past, new autos have evolved by incremental changes of pre-existing models. And in the decade following the Arab oil embargo, American cars did undergo a steady increase in efficiency that DOUBLED average gas mileage. But that all stopped with the Reagan-Bush administration. Fortunately, the Clinton-Gore regime has renewed interest in reducing environmental damage of cars.

With technology that is ALREADY AVAILABLE, Lovins believes cars can be made five to 20 TIMES more efficient that current models. He's talking about going 100 kilometres on 0.6 litres of gas while polluting less per litre! And, if Lovins is right, they can be as affordable and attractive as current vehicles as well as peppier and safer.

He makes a compelling case. At present, only 15-20 per cent of the energy from burning gas actually drives the wheels. Close to 85 per cent is wasted through friction by heating the air, road or brakes. By analyzing the loss of energy as a problem in physics, the solutions become stunningly simple and obvious. Reduce air drag by diminishing the frontal area, streamlining the body and using "slippery" materials. Lessen tire resistance by decreasing the weight of the vehicle with composites of new materials like carbon fibres that are stiffer and stronger but 3/4 lighter than steel.

Finally, braking inefficiency is reduced with an engine that is a hybrid-electric drive. Gasoline is burned to drive a generator, not wheels, and the electricity produced is sent to motors on the wheels. When braking, the motors are reversed and can recover 70 per cent of the energy for storage in small batteries. The engine can be a 10th of the normal size and it never idles because it turns off when enough energy is stored.

In a paper entitled SUPERCARS: The Next Industrial Revolution, Lovins outlines the science and technology as well as economics and manufacturing of the concept. The supercars can be sleek beauties and remarkably, by "leapfrogging" to a whole new production level, yield unexpected bonuses. For example, moulding composite materials is simpler and cheaper than stamping metal bodies while "painting — the costliest, hardest and most polluting step of automaking — can be eliminated by lay-in-the-mould colour."

With computers, new materials, fewer parts and simpler production techniques, there's no need for huge capital investments or massive factories. If it all sounds too good to be true, consider Lovins' punchline: It's already been proven feasible by General Motors! In 1991, GM committed 50 people to design, build, and road test a radically new kind of car. In 100 days, they created a stunning model that became a four-seater called the Ultralite. The cost of the project was $4.6 million which Lovins points out represents about eight hours of GM's North American losses.

The Ultralite weighed 635 kilograms, had four airbags, was roomier inside than a Chevrolet Corsica and smaller outside than a Mazda Miata. It was as zippy as a Mustang (accelerating from 1-100 km-h in eight seconds) with a top speed of 218 km-h. It travelled 100 kilometres in the city on 5.22 litre, and on highways on 2.9 litres (that's 62 miles/US gallon).

Lovins shows convincingly that a rapid and major reduction in pollution can be achieved right now without any sacrifice in quality of life or lifestyle. All it takes is the will, courage and vision to escape old mindsets. I have no doubt that the public is ready and waiting.

Why don't Canadian entrepreneurs take up the opportunity?

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Jack and Ethel Cowan and Cora Hewitt of Elmvale spent last weekend visiting relatives and friends in our county.

Sincere sympathy goes to the family and friends of the late Donald McMillan of Kinmount whose funeral was last week.

Dawn Marie Horn and Linda Piegiesenking of Brampton were visiting with Liz Bruinenberg in Minden and had a great time.

Joe Peacock of Bridgenorth enjoyed dropping in on Bessie Burk and they had a good visit.

Many people are on the sick list with good wishes going to Evelyn Gibson at home after surgery, Gord Lyddiatt, Annie Schrader, Eric Stearns, Herb Hancock, Sadie Kitcheman, Mark Vasey, Harry Cowen, Anna Hurrta, May Hicks and Bessie Burk.

At the weekly Monday afternoon Euchres at St. Paul's on Sept. 27 winners were, Marg McAfee for lone hands, and others Katie Parker and Norah Briggs, and draw went to Elli Langpohl.

At the Terrace we have had a great summer, quiet but restful as many had visitors. During this time, the BBQ was busy and we enjoyed the meals and get-togethers with Chefs Don, Peter and Loyne. Don and Marj Sisson moved away and we welcomed new residents Peggy and Fred George. The Monday euchre games went on all summer and our Friday afternoon cribbage will start October 15th. We had a grand tour and boat cruise at Orillia and splendid meals, and this was on the Hyland Crest Bus with our fine driver Bill Prentice. Next event will be our planned Turkey Supper with music after. But meeting almost daily in the Lobby and Friday morning at Coffee Hour are when we really get to have a chat with our neighbours.

There was a good crowd at the Legion Senior Euchres on Tuesday, September 28th and winners included Shirley Elcome for lone hands, and others being Ruby Shaw, Verna McDonald and Mitzi Alzner. This Group are having a course on Tuesday, October 12 at the Legion at 10 a.m. for making floral corsages and table centres with Doreen Fabian demonstrating and bringing supplies.

At Lochlin Centre the first Euchres of the season went on Tuesday, September 28th and winners there were Lorna Bridgman for lone hands, and others were Joyce Schellenberg, Bob Vick and Chris Hill and started at 7:30. Their next games will be October 12th with all welcome.

The Senior Shuffleboard Club are having their closing Pot Luck on October 6 at St. Paul's Church at noon and please bring your dishes and food.

We heard that the Minden Line Dancing is at Minden Legion Wednesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. and all welcome so come on out and have some fun and exercise at the same time.

The Genealogy Group had their meeting at the Common Room Wednesday, September 29th and members were turning in Crafts for the Christmas Draw, and we all got our Highlands Newsletter, with some being mailed to members. Good job done on these, Cec. More Books have been bought for their shelves and these are in the Minden Library for reference only. Tickets for their raffle are out there with much in the basket. Be sure and get your ticket.

Several things going on at Minden Legion very soon, Ladies' Auxiliary are having Fun Day on Sunday, October 17th at 12:30 with such things going on as a Horse Race, Ham Roll and many others with prizes. Then Famous Trivia Night is October 20th at 7:30 with members and guests welcome with lots of fun and laughs.

Again to mention our grand colour scenery, hope it lasts next week for the holiday.

The Minden Agricultural Society meeting will be October 12 at the Fair building at 7:30.

A social evening will be held Thursday, October 14 at 7:30 p.m. by the Seniors Curling group in the Minden Curling Rink. Refreshments & cheese will be served. New members welcome.

Results from the Branch 636 Euchre on Thursday, September 23 are: High Lady - Helen Byne, High Man - Orval Frances, Lone Hands - Gladys Wruth, Bill Menard, Draw Results - Milton Fletcher, Willard Bridgman, Bill Menard, Tod. Edgson, Low Man - Truman McNeel, Low Lady - Iris Taylor.

Euchre results from the Club 35 Pot Luck Supper on September 24 are: 50/50 Draw - Edith Russell, Lone Hands - Doreen Lewis, High Lady - Edith Russell, High Man - Bill Kleinschmidt, Others - Jeanne Penick, Norm Lee, Doreen Lewis, Winner of Special Monthly Draw - Phyllis Cranley. Results from the Club 35 Euchre on September 27 are: 50/50 Draw - Bob Lewis, Lone Hands - Jean Hewitt, High Lady - Helen Lee, High Man - Cliff Woolner, Others - Margaret Fletcher, Jim Irwin, Jean Hewitt. The next Wheels to Meals dinner is on October 12.

The next meeting of the Minden & District Horticultural Society is Tuesday, October 5 at 7:30 p.m. at Agnes Jamieson Gallery. Refreshments will be served. Everyone is welcome.

CARDS OF THANKS

SIMPLE WORDS - SINCERELY MEANT THANK-YOU
... to our family and the host of friends and neighbours who poured into Zion United Church to help us celebrate our 65th Wedding Anniversary on Sunday, September 19, 1993.
We were overwhelmed by the love and friendship that surrounded us. It was a thrill to visit with so many friends - both from the past and the present.
Special thanks to the folk who helped with the preparations, decorations and wonderful food — our children Fred and Joan Chapple, Fred Gregory and Barbara; our grandchildren Mark and Sharon, Dianne and David Fennell; our great grandsons - Scott and Jeffrey Fennell - who are the joy of our golden years; our Bridesmaid, Bertha Parker; and Nancy O'Loane, Linda McKnight, Betty Harrison, Jessie Pflug, Chris Archer, Marion McClelland, Barbara and Andrew Walford-Davis, Julie Hartin — the list goes on.
So many helped to make this occasion a beautiful memory. Thank you all from the bottom of our hearts. We have been richly blessed throughout our lives.
Hazel and Jack Gregory
Carnarvon

CARDS OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to everyone for their kindness, cards, phone calls and donations to Minden Hospital in memory of my mother, Josephine Nicol.
Georgina Deeks

IN MEMORIAM

HARRISON - In loving memory of Laura & Dave.
Asleep in God's beautiful garden,
Away from all sorrow and pain,
Someday when life's journey is ended,
We will be together again.
Remembered by sister-in-law Alice.

AT REST

PERK,
Walter Alexander
(retired Hydro pensioner and former resident of Minden). Warren Shaddock, his nephew, wishes to announce that after a brief illness, Walter entered into rest and joined his wife Sue on Sunday, September 26, 1993 at the Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. His cremation on September 27th through the Fred Turner Funeral Home will ultimately allow them to be together again and continue their loving and musical relationship which was enjoyed by all of their friends.
